Home Clinical practice Position statements and... Current: Medical decision-making... Position statement. Working with international students has made her interested in their experiences and how they develop a cosmopolitan perspective; it has also made her question what universities are doing to nurture. The following recommendations support those principles.

Any person having capacity to make healthcare decisions can make a healthcare decision. Health coaching is a key component of this approach and supports shared decision making conversations. It builds upon previous research into student voice and decision-making, citizenship education in the school curriculum and work with children as researchers. Provides research, resource, and leadership guides for youth alliances, service learning and student voice projects.

In Nigeria a child learn to kneel or even lie down as a sign of respect when an elder speaks. In social studies programs, students acquire a historical and contemporary understanding of the basic freedoms and rights of citizens in a democracy, and learn about the institutions and practices that support and protect these freedoms and rights, as well as the important historical documents that articulate
